Remembering Roy Harris, the radical language master

Lecture delivered by Dr. Stephen FARROW

Aula Magna Ex-Poste
Circ. Tiburtina 4 / Scalo S. Lorenzo - Roma
Tuesday, November 14th, 2017, h. 15.00

Roy Harris was Emeritus Professor of General Linguistics at the University of Oxford and Honorary Fellow of St Edmund Hall. He also held university teaching posts in Hong Kong, Boston and Paris and visiting fellowships at universities in South Africa and Australia, and at the Indian Institute of Advanced Study. His books on integrationism, theory of communication, semiology and the history of linguistic thought include: The Language Myth, Rethinking Writing, Saussure and his Interpreters, The Necessity of Artspeak, Rationality and the Literate Mind, After Epistemology.

Stephen Farrow, PhD, University of Oxford, Associate professor Plymouth University, English Language consultant, is Roy Harris's Literary Executor.

Info: marina.morbiducci@uniroma1.it ISO Dept.